The mid-20th century was a period of profound social upheaval in the United States. Civil rights movements, anti-war protests, urbanization, and shifting cultural norms created a fertile ground for artists seeking to capture authentic snapshots of American life. Photography, already established as a potent documentary tool, evolved into a means of revealing the complexities of identity, class, race, and social change.

During this era, the New York School of Photography, led by figures such as Robert Frank and Robert Adams, emphasized candidness, spontaneity, and an engagement with everyday life. It was within this fertile environment that the New Documents exhibition and publication emerged, aiming to showcase three distinct yet interconnected visions of American society.
