Introduction to Martial Arts

Kano's initial exposure to martial arts was through traditional jujutsu schools, which were prevalent during his youth. He trained in various styles, including Kito-ryu and Tenjin Shin'yō-ryū, which were known for their techniques of joint locks, throws, and grappling. However, he was dissatisfied with the often brutal and unregulated nature of these arts, which prioritized winning fights over safety and character development.

The Birth of Judo: Vision and Philosophy

Reformulating Traditional Jujutsu

During his studies at Tokyo Imperial University (then called the University of Tokyo), Kano was exposed to new ideas about education, science, and morality. Inspired by Western physical education programs, he sought to reform traditional jujutsu into a martial art that emphasized safety, efficiency, and moral character. Kano's judo was characterized by:

- Kuzushi (Off-balance technique): The core principle of using an opponent's force against them.
- Seiryoku Zenyo (Maximum efficiency, minimum effort): Advocating for technique over brute strength.
- Jita Kyoei (Mutual welfare and benefit): Promoting respect, cooperation, and moral integrity among practitioners.

Educational Philosophy

Kano viewed judo not merely as a martial art but as an educational tool. He believed that physical training could serve as a foundation for character building, moral development, and social harmony. This holistic approach was embedded in his teaching methodology, which emphasized respect,
