In the context of Bangladesh, administrative law governs a broad spectrum of activities, including the issuance of licenses, permits, and sanctions; administrative hearings; disciplinary actions against public servants; and judicial review of administrative decisions. It acts as a check on the arbitrary use of power, ensuring that government actions align with constitutional and statutory provisions.

Historical Development of Administrative Law in Bangladesh

Bangladesh's administrative law has evolved significantly since its independence in 1971. The legal framework inherited from British India influenced its early formation, particularly the colonial-era statutes and principles.

Over time, Bangladesh's administrative law has been shaped by constitutional mandates, statutory provisions, and judicial interpretations, balancing governmental authority with individual rights.
